

The National Exchange Point (LSP)

The National Exchange Point (LSP) ensures the fast and reliable electronic exchange of medical data. Healthcare providers, such as a general practitioners and pharmacies, can connect their computer systems to the secure LSP network.

Permission

If you have given permission for, your GP and/or pharmacy will notify the LSP that your medical information has been made available. Other healthcare providers can then request your current medical information, but only if it is necessary for your treatment. This ensures that healthcare professionals have the right information quickly and can provide you with the appropriate care, even in the evenings and on weekends.

Who uses the LSP?

Currently, GPs, out-of-hours GP clinics (huisartsenpost), pharmacists, hospital pharmacists, and medical specialists can use the LSP to share patients' medical data. Youth healthcare organizations (JGZ), such as those at health centers and schools, use the LSP to transfer files to other JGZ organizations.
